Article on Senior Citizen Day

~ Aman Goyal

As we all are aware about the International Day of Older Persons celebrated on 1st October this year where we spent some time with the wise and senior people of the family. Writing on this topic made me a bit emotional since I was not able to spend time with them on this day. These Covid days have also worsen the situation where I spent the time virtually through WhatsApp call. Spending time with them not only makes them happy but we also learn a lot of things which makes us wiser and choose better in our lives. But why do we celebrate this day? Do we only need to spend time with them just one day? The answer is obviously no. We just don't need to restrict ourselves by spending time with them only one day. We should spend our time with them at least an hour or two. Now why do we celebrate it? As we grow older we tend to forget them. And sometimes we become so busy that we send them in old age home. They taught us so many lessons, raised us and played games with us and what do we do? Instead of spending time with them and helping them in their old age we send them in old age homes. I used to remember when I was young my grandfather always used to give me toffee whenever I got good marks in my test always appreciating me for my hard work. I am so blessed that I have the best grandparents and they taught me so many lessons. They taught me how to behave with elder people. Now whenever I implement these things in my life I know I have made my life better and beautiful. I thank them for teaching me, appreciating me and playing with me.

A Tale of Old Times & Memories

~Charvi Kapoor

Spending time with my Dadi has always been a great stress reliever for me. It's like I get to feel the past just by listening to her. On the occasion of International Day of Older Persons, I decided to have a little chat with her about how she spent her childhood, what used to be her favourite pass-times, her family, and much more.

Came to India after the partition from Pakistan, she grew up with six siblings and her parents. She told me about how all of them were really close, and how they had spent time helping their mother with the household chores. In the summers, all of them used to eat food together, while her mother made and served hot chapatis, with all of them sitting around the tandoor. In winters, everyone used to sit around the angeethi for the dinner.

Growing up, she told me about how few resources and they had, yet they all used to happily manage with what they got. It was less but it was enough to keep them happy. For instance, she tells me how she and her siblings used geometry boxes as a piggy bank for keeping their pocket money and savings. Once she had collected enough to splurge on buying four suits for her cousin's wedding. She had learnt stitching, which used to be her pass-time. She stitched those four suits herself and wore them to the wedding, to which her younger sister was complaining to her mother why she gets to wear so many new clothes. Her mother explained that she had used her own savings to buy them. Unlike now, they rarely used to get new clothes, particularly on festivals, which was the reason for their excitement. Talking about festivals, she told me about Dusshera. They used to enjoy seeing the Ramleela, which started 10 days before Dusshera near their house. They even used to see the floats in Ajmere Gate which portrayed the different characters of the Ramayana.

Talking about her education, she mentioned that every sibling had to give a treat to the whole family on getting good grades. When she received second division in Arts, she threw everyone a 'Mango party'. She used her pocket money to buy five kgs of Dusshehri mangoes. They took a bucket with cold water, soaked the mangoes for an hour, and everyone circled around the bucket and enjoyed them after dinner. Earlier, there weren't used to be any refrigerators or anything to keep the fruits and vegetables fresh. So, in the evening they used to wait for their mother to come back from the market and serve them fresh fruits. It was these simple things that had so much significance in their lives. They enjoyed these little moments to the fullest.

They used to sleep on cots in the drawing room. They took out the table and laid cots in its place. Earlier, the weather used to get chilly much earlier than it does now, particularly Mid-October. Once they were up in the morning, they used to be afraid to go back to bed, of the fear that they might be scolded for sleeping till late.

Talking to her makes me realise how much times have changed. Everything was much simpler back then. People used to find happiness in the simplest of things. Sometimes it makes me wish that I could go back in time and experience life the way older people have. Maybe that's why I enjoy listening to my Dadi talk about her stories and experiences so much. It's a way of looking back into the past, just by hearing it today. I hope you enjoyed reading this as much as I enjoyed listening to her!

I spent the morning of 1st October 2021 with my grandmother. We had a cup of tea and talked a lot. It was a great experience as she told me about her love for gardening. I love how this activity made me spend some quality time with her.

I call my grandmother 'Aji' and my late grandfather 'Aba' .I was kid number 5 in the home and we were total 8 cousins sister and brother.During our summer vacation we used to visit them very often as a child and used to have a lot of fun without any phone or Internet. Until now before Aba passed away. Now Aji lives with us.

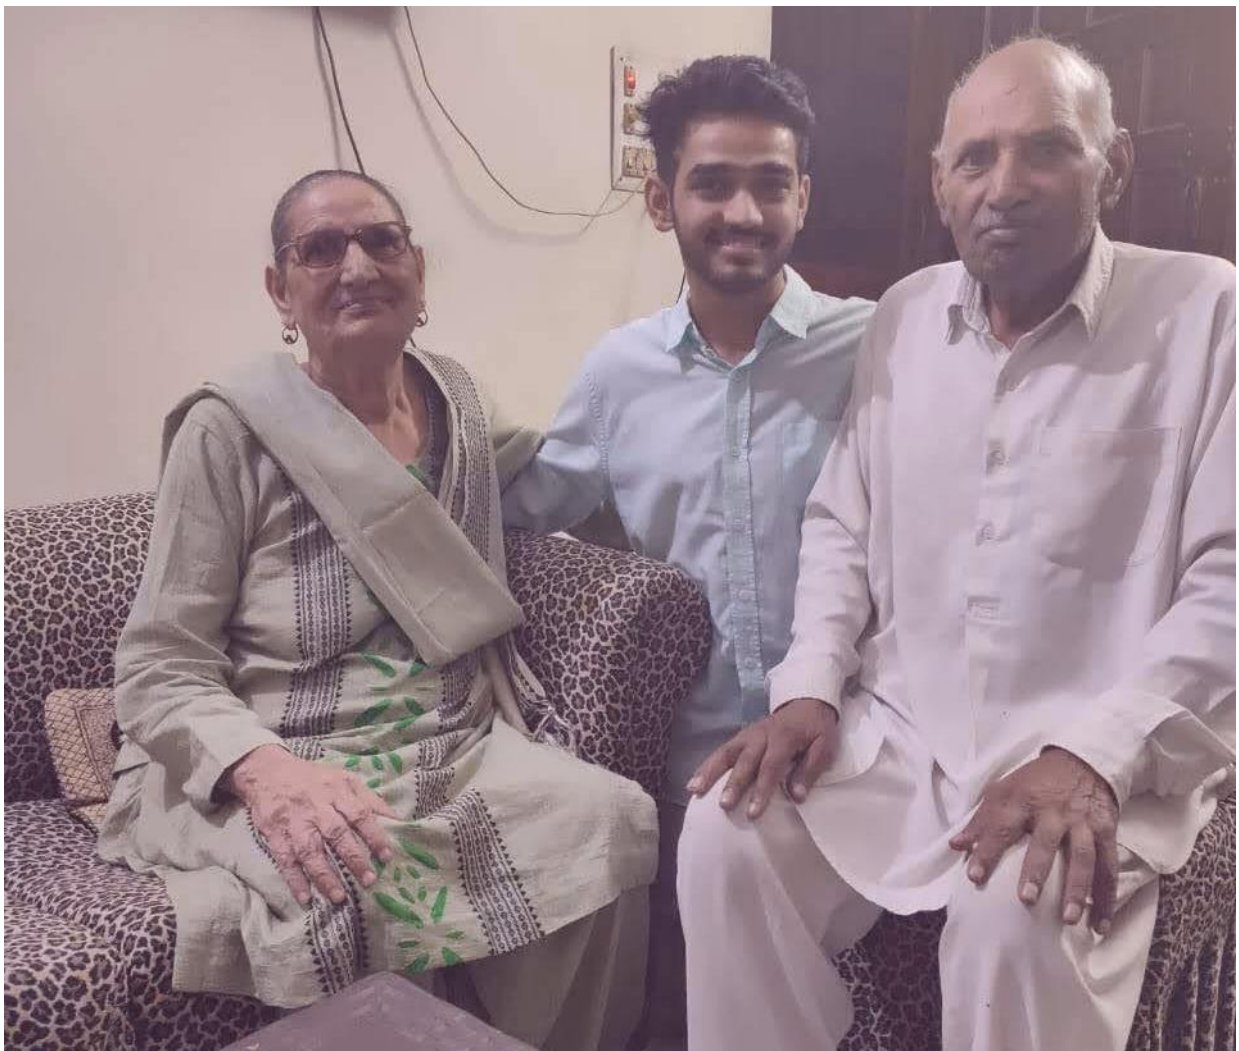

Owing to their life long experiences that they shared, the fun they had without the presence of digital life during their childhood, playing cards, chess, and so much more.

My Aba was a person who everyone loved. His aura, humour, poise were almost flawless. My Aji, less merciful than Aba, petite, small and super cute.

My Aji would read the news and Aba was keener for the Page 8. They used to solve the crossword that came in 'Hindustan newspaper'. Aji would be the one who would have the paper in her hand, solving, and at times would ask Aba.

They were so content with what they had and would always be there for each other. As a couple they were quite independent.

Aji used to prepare all the delicacies and sing songs to put us to sleep. Before Aba would tell us bedtime stories he made sure we drank a glass of milk.

Making Memories

Kamal Dobriyal 19058570062

We all know that 1st October is celebrated as the "International day of old Persons". So, I thought to spend some time with my elder ones who are senior citizens but the one who is closest to my heart is my grandfather but he lives in village because he loves to live there so I decided to talk to him on call. When I called him he felt so happy that his elder grandson had called him after that I asked him about his health and all other's in the home, then we just shared the weather of our locations and had he taken the meal or not and the most important that have he got vaccinated or not but yes he told that he have got fully vaccinated. As I had called him after about ~~the~~ one month so I asked him about his daily routine after that I asked him that when is he going to visit us so he said that he is probably going to visit us in this coming Diwali festival and after a short talk I told him to look after himself and requested too, to visit us for sure & cut the call after saying "Namaste". I felt so happy after talking to my loving grandfather & I am also excited about the day when he is going to visit us.

Spending time with loved ones

~ Santushti Gandhi

It is rightly said that “The best classroom in the world is at the feet of an elderly person”. Spending time with my Uncle has always been the best time I have. First of all, he is 67 years old and look at him how good and charming he looks. I make sure to spend at least 2 hours daily with him. We play cards and even watch films together. He really like old Bollywood movies whereas I’m a big fan of latest Bollywood movies, so whenever we need to decide which movie to watch we toss a coin and he always win. I always end up sleeping during old Bollywood movies and he wakes me up when the movie ends. I remember when I wanted to learn how to drive Scooty and I was discussing this with my father. He instantly agreed to teach me how to drive it. He taught me in 2 days and he was so patient. He also taught me how to drive a car. He is the best Uncle anyone can ever get. Recently, he requested me to teach me how to use Gmail and how to use WhatsApp web. Remembering about the days when he instantly agreed on teaching me how to drive vehicles, I also said yes in a fraction of seconds. He was really happy and when I finished teaching him, he was so enthusiastic on learning new things from me. I promised him to teach him daily about the new technologies that he does not know about. I am super blessed to have him in my life. He is always there for me no matter what, always helping me to become a better person. On this senior citizen day celebrated on 1st October, I made a cake for him – a sweet gesture so as to thank him for everything. We also discussed about some latest news and talked about politics, his favorite topic. We had dinner together and ate ice cream so as to end this day on a beautiful note. I am so grateful to God that I have him, who is always there for me. We should always respect our elders and learn from them since they have walked the path before us. Always respect them because someday and sooner than we could ever imagine we are also going to be old too. My mother always used to teach me to serve old age people as possible as I can, because some day I am also going to be at the same situation.

Hence, we should always spend time with them because they are wiser and smarter and they feel really happy when we spend time with them.

MAKING MEMORIES

NAME: Smiti Sansanwal Roll

My grandmother is 94 years old and she lives with my uncle who lives 5mins away from our house. Me and my family visit her every week, at least twice. She doesn't remember people at times and thinks that I'm one of her daughters. Her childhood memories are fresh but her memory grows faint as she grows older.

On 1st October, me and my family went to meet her. She recognises my father very well and my uncle and aunt say it's because she loved him the most since he's the youngest in the family. My grandmother sits, holding my father's hand and listens to us talk, talks to us and laughs at random times. My dad and her have a chemistry where my dad can understand what she's trying to say and they both then laugh with each other and leave us clueless.

This time, we discussed about how her early years were. The best anecdote that I heard was of my grandmother bringing puppies to the house. She loves animals and when she used to come back from the farm, if she would see a puppy on the way, she would bring it home and then my dad and his brothers and sisters would have to take the puppy back. We live near Sanjay Van and it has Golden Jackals. The population has grown less in number but back in the times, there were many golden jackals and they sometimes used to come into the village of Katwaria Sarai too. She once saw a jackal pup and she still remember that. She says she wanted to take it home. We heard many such stories and had tea and biscuits.

Then it was time to leave. She never likes it when we leave and she holds on to my dad's hand. My dad always says "Maa, kal aa jaunga firse".

Conversations with grandparents

...one of the most precious things you have.....

Today I spent quality time with my grandparents. Well, I keep talking to them ,but still we don't spend much time together because they live in village.

Like every day I asked them how they were. they said they are fine and asked me how we are all here. I said we are all fine too and asked them what were they doing? Grandma said that your grandfather was watching TV and I was just sitting.

They were asking me when I am coming to meet them. I want to visit them but can't go now. I told them that I will come to see them as soon as I get time.

They were telling me that come soon, how many months have passed, we have not even seen you. My grandma was saying that I do not know how you have become. Didn't get too thin. I laughed and said grandma I have become fat not thin. She started saying that this is a good thing. My grandparents don't have smartphones so I told them to tell me whenever my cousin Himanshu comes home so that we can make video calls.

We talked a lot. After that I said okay grandma, now I talk to you the next day, you and Grandpa take care of yourself. She said ok Beta, take care of yourself and study diligently.

Making Memoxies

On 1st October on the occasion of "International Day of Old Persons", I decided to spend some time with my uncle and aunt who live very near to my house. It was not a surprise for them as I visit them every now and then. My uncle and aunt are both retired from their jobs and their son, my cousin, works abroad, so I visit them twice or thrice a week to give them some company. That day was also pretty much like any other day. I told my uncle about this initiative by our college to encourage the students to spend some time with the old members of our family on the International day of Old Persons. Hearing this my uncle started laughing and cracked a joke saying that, "who told you that I am old? ~~I am~~ ~~not~~ I am still young like in my 20's. Hearing this, me and my aunt both ~~burst~~ burst into laughter. After that my aunt made some tea and the three of us ~~to~~ spent a good time chatting. They enquired about how my college was going on and what all things I was learning. After that

We had a chat on other two or three ~~things~~ things. I spend around an hour with them and before leaving my aunt packed some fruits for me and my parents.

After that I came back home and decided to call my another uncle who lives in Kolkata. I had a great time ~~to~~ talking to him. He told me some of the stories of when they were kids. He also enquired about how my studies were going on. Then he told me about his day and his daily routine which he has been following for a few months which included ~~a healthy lifestyle and told me to include for some~~ yoga and meditation. He ~~also~~ told me to try to include these in my daily routine also. I had a good chat with him for about ~~not~~ half an hour after that he continued the chat with my father.

It was a great day for me and I felt very happy ~~to~~ talking to my uncle and ~~my~~ aunt and I spent a great time with them.

Synopsis :

On last weekend, in pursuit of mind exercise Ram Lal Anand College organised a two-day inter college online Chess tournament where students from various colleges and universities, i.e. University of Delhi, IP University, Mumbai University, Maharshi Dayanand University, NIT Kurukshetra and several other universities took part. It was a progressive 2 stage 5/5-Swiss chess contest on Lichess.org platform. On Day-1 in Stage I, after the analysis of matches, out of 107 contestants, top 20 players qualified for Stage II. Each player in both the stages played 5 rounds, ranking was based on points earned (wins/draws) and performance scores. After the final analysis Bhavya Tewari from University of Delhi stood winner while Pratyush Bhatt from Indian Institute of Petroleum and Energy and Ayan Kumar Bajpai from Mumbai University were first and second runner ups respectively.

Brief Summary of the event :

The Department of Computer Science of Ram Lal Anand College under the convenorship of Dr. Vandana Gandotra, Associate Professor, Dept.of CS, Convener and Dr. Neeraj Kumar Sharma, Associate Professor, Dept.of CS, Convener organized a QUIZ on “OUR FREEDOM FIGHTERS” on 13 August.

Our Event Coordinator Ms. Manisha Wadhwa Arora Inaugurated the Certificate Course, enlightened the importance of the theme and expressed the deeds of great men and women who won us our freedom. Then she explained all the rules for the quiz and clarified the instructions for the same so that no student have to face any issues while giving quiz.

Then our Second Event Coordinator Ms. Dikscha Sapra made the students aware about the platform used for taking quiz and shared the Quiz with students.

The students of Ram Lal Anand college as well as other colleges from various disciplines participated enthusiastically in the quiz and shown extra ordinary skills while competing in the quiz.

The Quiz found to be very interesting to the participants and kept the participants engaged. Some participants finished within 15 seconds while others taken 15 minutes. Scoring was based on speed with accuracy so deserving candidates were selected for prizes.

Finally, Our Event Coordinator Ms. Manisha Wadhwa Arora announced the results giving an applause to winners and appreciating all the participants for performing well in the quiz.

3 Prizes were awarded to top 3 winners and all the participants were given participation certificates.

NUMBER OF PARTICIPATING STUDENTS: 150 Students

NUMBER OF PARTICIPATING FACULTY MEMBERS: 8

JUDGES: No Judges

BRIEF SUMMARY OF THE EVENT:

The Department of Computer Science organized a virtual Workshop on Virtual Labs in association with vLabs IIT Delhi. VLabs is an initiative of Ministry of Education under the National Mission on Education through ICT. The Speakers for the workshop Mr. Prateek Sharma and Mr. Shivam Sundaram –vLabs Mentors explained the students how virtual labs is providing a complete Learning Management system where the students can avail the various tools for learning including additional web resources, video lectures, animated demonstrations and self evaluation. They also explained to the students how to perform experiments related to HTML, CSS, Machine Learning, and Fuzzy Systems via virtual labs. The session was really interactive and interesting. At the end the students were given time to ask their queries, which were beautifully resolved by the experts.
