TRAINING ON

EXPERIENTIAL LEARNING AND SOFT SKILLS DEVELOPMENT IN POLICY SCIENCES

CONCEPT NOTE

EXPERIENTIAL LEARNING

"For the things we have to learn before we can do them, we learn by doing them"-Aristotle.

Experiential learning conjointly referred to as (EXL) is that the method of learning through expertise, and is a lot of specifically outlined as "learning through reflection on doing". Experiential learning methodology could be a well-known model in education, training, facilitation, work and organisational development. It is associate in nursing immersive, participant targeted active approach to learning that engages learners of all ages, backgrounds and knowledge levels. It is effectively utilized in faculties, education, therapy, company coaching and alternative areas for academic learning, personal development and skills building. The general construct of learning through expertise is ancient. But as an articulated educational approach, experiential learning is of much more recent vintage Experiential learning requires self-initiative, an "intention to learn" and an "active phase of learning'. Experiential learning is said to happen or take place when participants get immersed cognitively, emotionally, behaviourally and are supported by a facilitator in reflecting, processing the experiences, emotions, thoughts, and actions to get an insight in a safe learning environment, leading to change in perspective, understanding, thought, and behaviour. As higher education continues to adapt to new expectations from students, experiential learning in business and accounting programs has become more important. With reference to this study, employers note that graduating students need to build skills in "professionalism" – which can be taught via experiential learning. Students also value this learning as much as industry.

SUMMARY OF THE TECHNICAL SESSIONS

Since after the primary lockdown, scholastic discourse and dissemination- academic & co-curricular- has shifted to the virtual gear, where meet-classes, video-conferences, zoom-conferences and webinars (seminars that are hosted virtually) comprise the 'new-normal', mostly. The Department of Political Science of Ram Lal Anand College, organised a series certificate course on "Training on Experiential Learning and Soft Skills Development in Policy Sciences".

The first session of this certificate course commenced with the screening of the movie "Rann", followed by a documentary on the inception and making of the Metro Rail in Delhi after which a review and a Question-Answer session was held. The next session was followed by Dr. Nidhi Yadav briefly discussing the formalisation of a research paper, which was later accompanied by a short video on communication skills and how to nurture self-confidence in presentation skills.

The next few sessions provided an insight on how to prepare for competitive exams. There was a panel discussion on current topics and general knowledge, which were later followed by the discussion of sample papers and multiple choice based questions. Dr. Nidhi Yadav in addition to the sample questions discussed the previous UPSC/SSC/NET papers.

Dr. Triranjan Raj, in his session described state minimalism and market driven policies as the New Economic Policies, where the private sector is favoured as well; this stands opposed to the older way of a welfare state in the traditional administration. However, in the onset of an emergency the state had to shoulder a lot of responsibilities that a welfare state assumes generally. Majority of the healthcare system, transportation, basic amenities was administered by the state. He described the stringent lockdown, as a shift in gear by the Government from democracy to hard-state, at the onset of a nationwide medical emergency, and elucidated how the government's healthcare system decided the boundaries of the private sector's involvement. He also described the new form of governance in the age of technology and globalisation. After enlightening the students on the administration's capabilities he said that SDGs, which are the bare-minimum requisites for good governance. He discussed lastly- widespread poverty, illiteracy and broader problems like climate change and net pollution, public services.

Dr. Kshama Sharma shared the importance of studying Ancient Indian Political Thought in the present time. She described how the 200 year long rule of the British in India became successful in making its citizens believe that they had no cultural, political, social or creative history and that India's ancient past was not at all diverse and developed. Although, this was not the case, India was one of the most developed countries in the ancient times, with the presence of Kautilya and many others, India also had a vibrant history of art and culture. Hence, it is important to study our rich past to learn our heritage and to gather new thoughts to resolve modern problems.

The on-going course proceeded with oral presentations of the assignments prepared by the students and evaluated by Dr. Nidhi Yaday.

The following sessions were held by the faculty of Department of Political Science of Ram Lal Anand College. The first was held by Dr. Sunil Kumar, he guided the students on Public Speaking and Debating Skills. He articulated on what to do and what not to do while speaking and that confidence was key.

Dr. Ram Bagri laid emphasis on the necessity of having the basic terminologies of knowing the basic terminologies of once concerned subject as it would help one take active participation in Group Discussions on different forums especially while appearing for entrance examinations and interviews.

The students were further given guidance by Dr. Vijay Bhatia on the formulation of assignments. In addition to the help on formulation and presentation of assignments he also talked about how to properly construct an answer.

In this on-going certificate course, the students were also provided a session on Career options after graduation given by Dr. Alankar. The students were made aware about the post-graduation options and further opportunities in academic and professional arenas.

BACKGROUND

The e-Symposium 'Urban and Rural Governance; Issues and Challenges' was organised by Department of Political Science (SoLACS), Adamas University, Kolkata in collaboration with Ram Lal Anand College, Delhi University. The symposium focused on the day to day challenges and various issues of governances in light of the novel corona virus i.e. COVID19. It was held on 13th of June, 2020on e-platform for conferencing (ZOOM) which brought around 500 participants from diverse fields across the state.

The primary agenda of the e-symposium was to expand the knowledge on governance and discuss various tactics to overcome the modern-day problems and issues, e.g. COVID19. Currently the world is going through a pandemic which has shifted the focus of the government towards exploring new dynamics of governance, thus the rural and urban governance was the core point of discussion as grass-root levels government is very vital for better functioning of the state. The program was held to deliver insights of the present situations into governance and bring awareness among people of the what-to-do and what not-to-do in current times.

PROF. KAMLA KANT PANDEY (POWER POINT PRESENTATION)

ROLE OF URBAN GOVERNANCE

Prof. Pandey mentioned that the urban governance is as much important as the rural one i.e they both go hand in hand, one is complimentary to each other. He says that urbanisation is inevitable so we see a drastic flow of people from rural areas to the urban which is what we call migration but it is also important to retain these people to the rural areas as majority of India is depended on agriculture for direct raw material. The main question he raised in the session is that why the Indian government is not able to generate jobs in rural parts of India? Why we have not been able to achieve this goal yet? Because if can generate better jobs in rural india thenthe migration would possibly be balanced which ultimately will solve majority of the issues of urban areas. This can be well related to the current situation of migrant mess happening in the country due to nation-wide lockdown. People struggled to get home (into rural areas) as they lost jobs in cities simultaneously increasing the vulnerability of spreading of the disease in those areas.

He then mentioned about the spiking of the number of cases of corona-virusin the nation and that too because of the mis-management and dull response of the government in containing the flow of virus (one can well understand the difference when compared with countries like China, New Zealand, European countries, etc.).

COVID19 AND URBAN SOCIO ECONOMIC PROBLEM

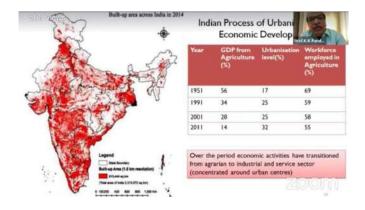

Due to the COVID19, the current production rate has dipped to minimals (around 80%) also GDP has been vastly hit raising alarming situation. GDP has been halted to 1.9% as per the IMF. The absorbing capacity of the cities have shrunken failing to absorb the surplus labour.

URBAN GOVERNANCE; THE CHALLENGES

- Housing and infrastructure (space and congestion issues)
- Social Integration through Digital Governance
- Spaces for surplus labour in the urban areas leading to the spatial dispersal of the economy
- Disease containment issues in many districts
- Hygiene and sanitisation process must be carried out on broad levels
- Insufficiency of proper toilets and restrooms in the cities added by poor vigilance of urban administration

DRIVING FORCE FOR URBAN INITIATIVES

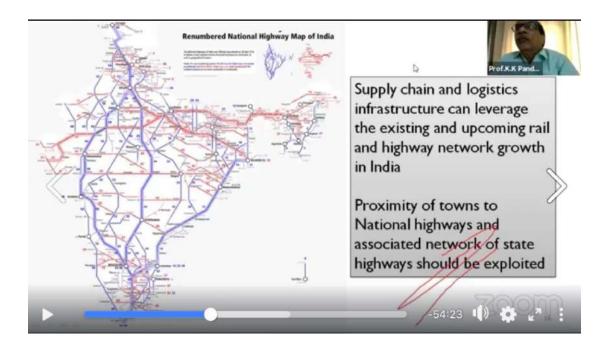

Investment in the society right now is the key to the revival of its economy. As per the IMF, V-shape recovery with 7.4% in FY21-22 has been predicted for India and that is only possible if the government is willing to invest in the economy now. The organisation and government institutions are seeking stimulus package which should be despatched in the early hour of the time. Also as the supply chain has been broken down the government with the help of NGOs must deliver the essentials to the distribution authority ensuring no shortage of supplies.

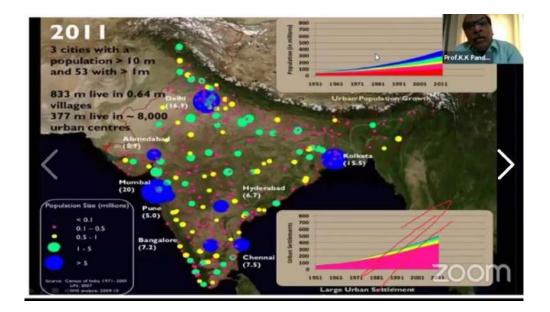

There has also been liquidity crisis in many banks which can easily be solved through the stimulus package or through liquidity injection of money through proper channel. This will ensure that during these times people can pursue for loans at very minimalistic interest rates.

FOCUS AREA FOR URBAN GOVERNANCE

- Urban have potential of V+ recovery
- Restoration of productivity of major town and cities in the state
- Correction of Digital Divide: Competitive Edge and Structural Transformation
- Existing Productivity Clusters and New Avenues
- Spatial Dispersal of Economic Activities

The networking is very vital for any country's economy and governance, the above slide of the powerpoint presentation shows the renumbered National Highways of India. As mentioned above that proximity of towns to national highway and associated network of state should be exploited, thus strengthening the connectivity and boosting the supply chains.

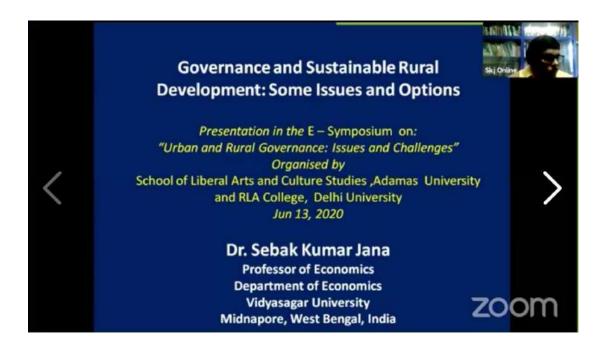

The above slide of the powerpoint presentation shows the 2011 data of population spread/density in India with blue zones marking population size of more than 5 million, green showing 1-5 million, yellow showing 0.5-1 million. There are approximately 3 cities with more than 10 million population and 53 cities with more than 1 million. This figures shows that governments must have face harder challenge in containing the spread of the virus.

CONCLUSION

The decentralisation of power matters here, the state must be left in planning the towns and cities and bringing efficiency to the infrastructural productivity. Professor mentions that the city government should play nodal role in city planning. Municipalise census towns with ULB status. He also focused on establishing and enhancing the digital governance. Digital governance plays vital role in effective management and ensures smooth and bulk-free governance. But all these digital governance requires building of digital infrastructure and therefore must be attained by the governments.

Dr. SEBAK KUMAR JANA (POWER POINT PRESENTATION)

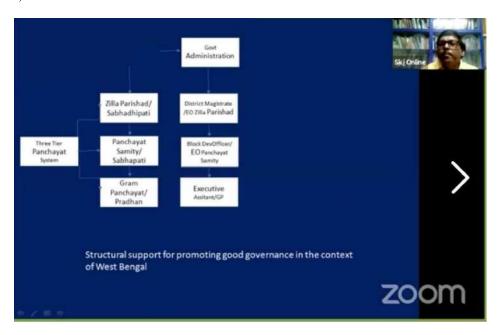

RURAL DEVELOPMENT

Dr. Sebak delivered his speech focusing on the issues of governance in rural India and he also confined his broad wisdom of rural governance towards ways of achieving sustainable development in these vulnerable areas. He mentioned that rural development is basically been the victim of exploitation of natural vegetation since colonial times. Once what we know that India's rural areas were rich and self sufficient has now become barren and untidy lands. Thus he focuses on the ways of establishing proper infrastructure making way for sustainable development. Sustainable development involves a holistic approach where daily needs of rural population are covered by technical, socioeconomic, environmental conditions to support regional economies urban-rural linkages.

In the below given slide he mentions policy instruments for Rural Development;

Then he talks about the rural governance and it's structure which he describes through a flow chart; given in the slide below;

The three tire structure of rural governance

AGRICULTURAL ISSUES IN INDIA

There are number of issues that have not been eradicated from the rural parts of the India, says Mr. Pandey. He has talked about few of the major issues that have domination currently. He had mentioned about the greater dependency of people in the agricultural sectors since independence. The data shows that 1 crore people were in the agricultural sector in 1951 which has now risen to 26 crore in 2011. Thus this specific situation demand for the better solutions by the sate or central government. He then says that though there is a high workforce in this sectors only traditional and old people are joined with this whereas the youth is not into this field of work. The average age of the farmer in India has been recorded at 50.1 years as of 2016.

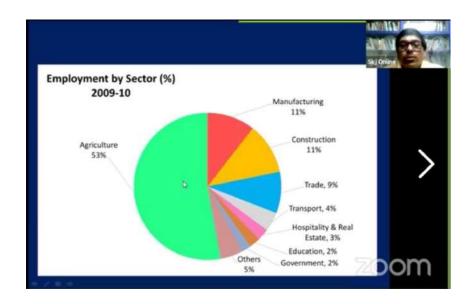

Then there is another problem knocking at the doors and that is the imbalances created because of shift of the young population from rural to urban sectors. Thus the village or the rural areas lacks wisdom of the young minds into the agriculture which also impacts the productivity rate.

People also do not want their children to get into agriculture is because this profession has very less to offer in terms of monthly salary. Statistics shows that the average monthly income of the farmer is Rupees 3,081 in 2012-13(NSSO) and Rupees 3,140 in 2016-17 (NABARD). This is one failure of the government that it can not successfully provide the minimum support price(MSP) to it's farmers. There is also another aspect to look into as per Mr. Jana, and that is the cause of Low Diversification. Government policies are more geared to the increasing volume of cereals. There is less focus on the value addition, crop diversification, exports and disintermediation for ensuring higher income of farmers.

IMPACT OF COVID19 ON RURAL ECONOMY

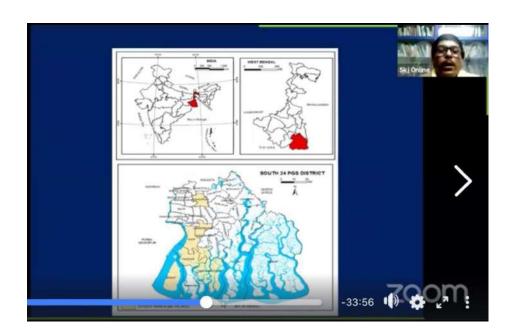

With the current issues which had laid its footmark in almost every sector in India has also effected the rural economy. With nearly no labour to harvest Rabi crops the supply has been delayed. The fishing, poultry, etc sectors are among the mostly impacted industries. An estimate shows that the losses have risen to nearly 500 crore for the poultry and meat industries in India.

Farmers of perishable commodity like fruit, vegetables, and flowers in particular have been incurring losses. The collection and sale of non-profit forest produce by tribal communities in odisha have been badly effected. Mr. Jana says that there is an urgent need for the government to revive its economy or else many other problems can occur in course of time.

The above pie-chart depicts the percentage of workforce people are engaged with and clearly it shows that 53% of people are directly or in-directly connected to agricultural sector. Mr. Jana then shared his research work on the topic of 'Renovation of Irrigation Schemes'. The scheme'National Project for Repair, Renovation and Restoration of water bodies directly linked to Agriculture' has been implemented in various sates of India. In West Bengal itself there are 47 schemes have been completed in the district of south 24 Pgs during the period of 2005-08. The other important projects are RIDF, and NABARD. He said, the main objective of his research in the section was to evaluate the impact of smallholder irrigation on rural household welfare in the saline region of India.

The below given slide show the region of his research;

HAPPA AND ITS ECOLOGICAL AND SOCIAL BENEFITS

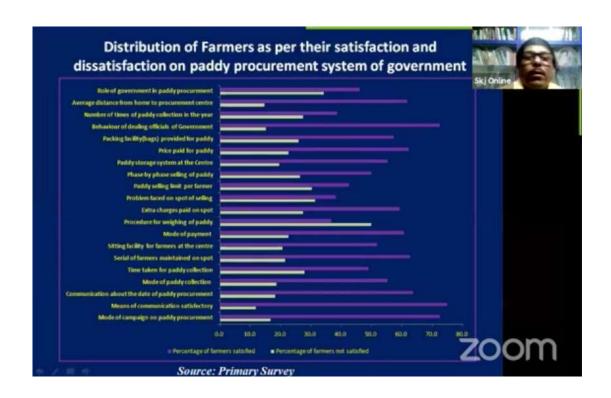

In the second part of his research he shifted his focus from saline zone to dry or muddy zones. He defines happa as a mud-excavated rain water harvesting structure and does not have any cement work or stone revetment. The side-of a happa are stepped with slope of 1:1 such that both livestock and human can access the water of happa easily. A haapa is constructed by the side agricultural field of a farmer with average length of 45ft, breadth of 50ft and depthof 12ft. The total earth extraction of this happa is 17,360 cubic feet which requires 299 mandays.

Mr. Jana delivered few of the ecological and social benefits mentioned below;

- The soil and moisture conservation of the watershed area has improved in the village.
- Because of the enhanced moisture retention microbial activities and biomass deposition have increased.
- 80% of the households surveyed have given their opinion that construction of happa has checked soil erosion and run-off.
- A major share of the households of around 70% has opined improvement in land quality.
- Household use water from happa for different purposes like bathing, washing clothes and utensils.
- The distress migration of people in search of work has also been checked.
- The process of happa construction has also lead to institutional development in terms of greater participation of poor and marginalised farmers.

Through primary research he checked the satisfaction and dissatisfaction on paddy procurement system of government, and he also shared a chart diagram;

REVIVING THE RURAL ECONOMY DURING COVID19

He suggests that the government should provide direct finance to the farmers and increase the amount of PM Samman Kisan Nidhi from the present 6000 rupees to further higher. It is also important to liberalise the expansion of markets and consistent funding of MGNREGS is established. Building rural infrastructure for supporting the rural economy is important and this can be achieved in the same way as It happens in cities.

The allocation of budget in the rural sector must be increased to ensure no lack of funding and enhance the development process. Mr. Jana also mentioned about the smooth functioning of the supply chain and distribution of the commodities to vulnerable population.

CONCLUSION

While concluding he gave some very strict and strong suggestion that need to be implemented by the government as soon as possible. He said that crop diversification is very much important and at the same time one needs to start practicing rain water harvesting which has the potential of boosting the irrigation and production of diverse crops. Innovation in irrigation is also important. Time to time the agricultural sector must be introduced with the modern tech and agricultural equipments. This would also require some skilled labour and has the potential of generating jobs in rural areas.

Sustainable development is another aspect where the government must look after to achieve better results in this sector in future. Mr. Jana said that there are many instances when there is miss-management of funds which are being provided to the panchayats, thus this kind of issues must be dealt with the District Collector beforehand. The funds availability at the GP level would now be Rs 2,404 per capita over five years(2015-20) and Rs 17 lakh a year for the average GP. Based on the plans prepared by the panchayat, the grant has to be spent on the basic services, such as such as sanitation, drinking water maintenance of community assets. The essential commodities act and APMCs allows for the formation of monopolies. Private mandi with modern infrastructure need to be promoted.

Formalising tenancy has been one of the priorities of government since independence and that has to be achieved. Encouraging rural youth is also important, statistics shows that about 67% of the rural youth live in the area that have high agricultural potential thus if pushed a bit then it can attain great success. Better market infrastructure including rural roads, village storage, and planned village can also be beneficial for the rural economy as many would not leave for cities in search of better housing and facilities. Therefore if the government focuses the there are certain issues which can be solved just by putting a little effort and the rest would require centre's aid and support.

Report of E-Workshop on— Research Methodology and Data Handling (May 28-June, 2020)

An e- Workshop was organized by the Department of Laws, BPS Mahila Vishwavidyalaya, Sonipat, in collaboration with the Department of Political Science, Ram Lal Anand College, University Of Delhi. It was a 5-day workshop from 28th May to 1st June in which there was detailed and effective discussion on research methodology and data handling. The session was inaugurated by Prof Sushma Yadav (Hon. Vice Chancellor of BPS Mahila), Prof. Ipshita Bansal (DAA and Dean of Laws) and Prof Rakesh Kumar Gupta (Principal, Ram Lal Anand College). The Convenors of the Workshop were Dr Shalini (Assistant Professor, Department of English), Dr Rajesh Hooda (Head and In charge, Department of Laws). Dr Nidhi Yadav (Assistant Professor, Department of Political Science, Ram Lal Anand College) was the organizing Secretary of the Workshop. The learning outcomes of this workshop was to make everyone understand Theory of Research, Qualitative data analysis, create quizzes with Google form, formulations of problem, hypothesis generation, research methodology, data handling, report writing and plagiarism.

The session was started by Dr Rajesh Hooda introducing Hon. Vice Chancellor Prof Sushma Yadav, who has an experience of more than 30 years before joining IIPA and was also the Chairperson of Ambedkar chair. She has also been awarded ICSSR Doctoral fellowship and Inter university associateship at Indian Institute of Advance Studies, Shimla. She has also authored 10 books and has travelled to many countries to present papers' as resource person. She has also been the recipient of various awards such as Rai Bhadur Gauri Shankar memorial medal and has also been the member of UGC and Press council of India.

Prof Rakesh Gupta (Hon. Principal Of Ram Lal Anand College, University of Delhi), also inaugurated the session. He has contributed many papers to various National and International Journals. He has completed research projects sponsored by various agencies and received United Nation Development Programme fellowship in 1984 and 1987.

Prof Ipshita Bansal (DAA and Deans of Laws) was also introduced. She has contributed various articles at National and International seminars and has travelled many countries for academic pursuits. A Professor with rich expertise and intelligence, also has a vast field experience in Qualitative research.

Speaker 1 - The first presentation was made by Dr Ritu Gupta(Professor at NLU). She has also been the faculty of University School of Law and Legal Studies of IP university and also authored books on Sexual Harassment and Law of Contracts, and has also been the recipient of Rex Karanvir global fellowship and Karamvir chakra award and also awarded by ICSSR.

Prof. Ritu Gupta presented a presentation on Formulation of research and hypothesis, where she discussed what research means and what does it consist of. Before commencing research the purpose of it should be clearly elucidated. Research involves systematic, careful investigation into specific question with primary objective to contribute the existing knowledge

She discussed major objectives of research which includes Contribution to existing knowledge of any discipline. It should address policy making that reflects in law and decision making and it should answer specific question or specific issue. With respect to Legal research, it includes a systematic finding or ascertainment of law on identified topic or in the given area as well as an inquiry into the law with view of making advancement in science of law. Another important aspect of legal research that she discussed was the Ambit of Legal Research which includes Legislators, Judges, Lawyers, Law students ,Law teachers , that is how legal research is important for all these peoples because whatever legislators are designing it will impact all of these as well as their researches respectively. Researchers should identify weakness in laws, critically examine them and suggest reforms in laws etc.

Broadly, Legal research is identified in two important categories that is Qualitative and Quantitative respectively

In quantitative research, it produces data that can be statistically analyzed and findings can be presented in numerical forms, whereas in qualitative, it includes surveys, experiments, structured interviews and outcomes is presented in form of description. She discussed various kinds of Legal Research such as Descriptive, Analytical, Applied, Pure Legal, Conceptual and Empirical. She then proceeded towards defining Hypothesis and its formation, which she described as a tentative statement and its validity or invalidity has to be tested on the basis of research. At last, she concluded her presentation by describing how one can contribute to better research by creating awareness of the potential problem.

Speaker 2: Dr. Jyoti Chahal explained on the topic Developing Google forms.

She started her presentation by explaining how important it is to collect data with the help of Google Forms and how easily we could get it. Also, we also got to know how to access Google forms and then how according to our needs and data requirement we can adjust its settings. She presented a demo for filling form, how to fill details in it and talked about its multiple features through which we can get the respondent to answer. For instance, in the form of short answer or mcq. Overall, it was great learning experience. We as student got to learn how we can use it for different purposes.

Dr Ravi Bhushan elucidated on the topic Theory of Research. According to Albert Gyorgi, research is to see what everybody else has seen and to think what nobody else has thought. It should always be done to provide solutions facing the society and for one's own intellectual joy. It forces us to analyse things in a more comprehensive manner and compels us to look into ramifications of a particular action. A research should always bring something new to the table and on top of that it should clearly define the Objectives, Methods used, among other things. The most imperative aspect of a research is that it should be original as it makes the research more authentic and enhances the doers' credibility. It is to be noted here that every research starts with a vague idea and then it proceeds to solve queries of all kinds.

RESEARCH ETHICS

When a research work is commenced, it is always to kept in mind that one should always remain true and committed to one's work and the work done should be relevant, valid and reliable. As researchers, one should always maintain high moral and technical standards, maintain confidentiality and avoid conflict of interest, among other things and avoid misrepresentation of sources, fabricating date and worst among all, Plagiarism. Plagiarism is the imitation of other's work without giving them due credits and it should be avoided. When once research is commenced one should not refrain from putting in efforts and get something new out of it and contribute to the society at large.

"There is nothing as sacred as knowledge in this world" – bhagwad geeta.

DAY - 3

Speaker 1- Dr. Parmila demonstrated about creating Quiz with the help of Google forms, where she provided us with a demo on how to create Quiz easily and efficiently. She also presented on how to generate E-Certificate after responding to the questions of quiz in case if someone gets the desired criteria of passing the quiz ,thereafter she discussed various aspects of quiz and how to create them like how to add new questions, what type of answer can we have like mcq, short answer, or one word, how to add questions to the form ,generate answer key in case of wrong answer and in the end she concluded her session by discussing how important is it in contemporary times to collect data as well with accessing technology easily ,how one can evaluate knowledge through the medium of quiz and it can be used as a effective tool for accessing student's knowledge ,with such different perspectives to be known this session was really fruitful and quite good learning experience for all of us.

Speaker 2 – Professor Ipshita Bansal tactfully elucidated about Qualitative Research. This method is generally used to gain insights into a particular problem in great detail and advocates that a research should always be conducted to get something new. This methodology advocates having a direct communication with the respondents so as to get ground level realities. The merits of having this method is that you have inductive data analysis, participants' meanings(ulterior) as well and most imperatively a holistic account. While doing research, the most pertinent problem which a researcher encounters is the lack of commitment and engaging in time consuming data analysis process and one requires strong intent and commitment to overcome this hindrance. A researcher should consult different sources such as interviews, documents, to corroborate his arguments and should always maintain good ethical standards.

DAY - 4

Professor Sunita Arora presented on the topic of data analysis and data handling, while giving us a live demo on MS Excel. She provided us with ways to properly and effectively analyse data through the tools available in MS Excel.

3 types of statistical analysis on Ms Excel;

- 1) Descriptive stat
- 2) Chi square test
- 3) Regression

To use these analyses and many more like them, we must install analysis tool pack in MS Excel. To check if one already has analysis tool pack, check data tab. if you don't have data analysis already installed in MS Excel, Professor Sunita Arora walked us through the procedure to install data analysis pack.

Descriptive stat analysis was performed on a data about average score of students in different districts of California. Test scores, expenditure per student, student-teacher ratio, percentage of English learners were the few strands of data available to us. She helped us perform descriptive stat analysis on the average score of students. She explained to us about the different variables in Descriptive stat analysis and the negative and positive side on the axis.

Chi Square test is done to find out if there is some relation between two sets of variables. She walked us through this form of analysis by giving us varied examples. She implied this analysis tool on different examples. She also talked about level of significance and how much level of significance is acceptable. She talked about various intricacies and details about calculation of data.

Regression equation is applied when there is a linear relation between variables. To apply regression data should be continuous. There are different types of data like cross sectional data, time series data and panel data. She talked about different types of data while calculating regression and different types of scales. She demonstrated how to do multiple regressions and what are it's requirements.

The presentation by Professor Sunita Arora was very helpful and enlightening since it helped all of us to learn how to analyse data in an efficient and effective manner which will help us to enrich our quality of research work. This topic was essential to all the research professors as it helped us gain knowledge to better assimilate data and then analyse it comprehensively for our benefit. MS Excel is a complex system to work on but Professor Sunita Arora explained the various technicalities and it's uses in a simple and smooth manner.

Dr. Priti Sharma, very tactfully explained T-test. Something which most individuals struggle with, while doing research. T-test is used for the determination of a significant difference between the means of two samples. She explained how the sample size for T-test is assumed to be small (30 or less than 30). Most people might use T-test for larger sample sizes which isn't right. The observations, are random and independent. They are not selected by choice, on purpose. Here, the population Standard Deviation is not known but the population mean is known. The T-test is mostly measured on the 0.05 level of significance. She mentioned that P value is Probability value, smaller than 0.05 indicates the null hypothesis to be rejected. When the P value is greater, the lack of evidence against the null hypothesis, makes us accept the null hypothesis. The meanings and considerations of one tail and two tail tests in a given research. She also conveyed what is the degree of freedom. Which signifies all the independent values that can vary in an analysis without breaking any constraints.

Deepika Antil, spoke about Research Report Writing. As witnessed, most researchers have difficulty gathering the essentials of report writing in a research. This session helped us understand the core of report writing. Research report writing is a logical and proper representation of the research that has been conducted. It helps in the implementation of the research on a larger scale and establishes a future use of the topic. The report becomes a communication gate between the reader, who could be a layman on the subject and the researcher. The proper steps that are involved in report writing were also explained. The objective of a report is to convey knowledge to the concerned target audience. Information on what contents a report should carry, were explained: Introduction – Purpose of research, Factors leading to the choice of topic. Methodology – Methods used in carrying out the researches, sample selection, Hypothesis. Review of Literature – Researches the writer assessed to gather relevant and existing information and literature on the problem. Analysis and Interpretation – The stage where the data is analyzed, interpreted possible conclusions are understood. Conclusion/Summary – A conclusion is the last paragraph that concludes the research. A summary of the key points is written. Includes if a hypothesis was accepted or rejected. The conclusion follows the order of introduction. References/Bibliography – Literature taken from authors, researchers, websites, articles and their sources are mentioned so that there is no chance of plagiarism. In the end, the proof reading of the final draft is done so that when the report is published, it is without any errors.

PRESIDENTIAL ADDRESS

Prof. Sushma Yadav, Honble Vice Chancellor, Bhagat Phool Singh Mahila Vishwavidhalaya delivered the Presidential Address. While addressing the participants in her remarks, she began with expressing immense gratitude to the organizing team comprising Dr Rajesh Hooda and Dr Shalini Atriya, under the guidance of Dr Bansal and to Dr Nidhi Yadav who worked under the guidance the senior department colleagues and also under very esteemed Principal of the College Prof. Rakesh Kumar Gupta. She also thanked Prof. Rakesh

K. Gupta for collaborating with the University for this event. Upon looking at the response the workshop gathered, she called everyone enthusiastic and seekers of knowledge.

She congratulated Prof. Ipshita Bansal who helped in highlighting the important areas of research work and the indigenous knowledge system which is necessary for India to rediscover itself.

Prof. Yadav further guided that there is a lot of scope of research in Social sciences now. Social science is a mix of society and research. How to improve social life, and lead a better life while harmonizing with each member of the society, should be the aim of research. She also guided the researchers not to do research in areas where there is a lot of literature already present, because then there won't be anything new to say. So it is important to choose a field where one has keen interest and the literature is not so abundant. The greatest research comes from either a crisis or desire.

She further suggested that when working with data, it is best to peruse through the data available on a broad subject and the actual research done on it, multiple times before choosing a topic to work on. This is the first step to researching in social sciences. As far as citations, references and bibliography are concerned, whenever information from another source is used, a proper citation down to the page number is very important. Reference may simply be referring to a previous citation. Bibliography is a combined collection of the citation and references.

Prof Sushma Yadav further explained that after going through the literature of your preferred subject, the next step should be hypothesis building. We have no good works from India on Liberty, equality, democracy. Action research may lead to very good theory building. Everyone knows about M.N. Srinivasa he developed theories about social science by looking around in his environment.

We have not been able to research properly on the strengths of ancient Indian Civilization. Therefore we need to connect history, geography, and societal dynamics to research about social sciences effectively. The time today is very unique, where one can be with their resources, and their mind, and should therefore use this time to think of solutions to problems that have no data in the world as of now, and ultimately, use the topic as a subject for one's research. She concluded her address by extending best wishes to everyone, and thanks to RLA college Principal Rakesh Gupta, Dr Nidhi Yadav, Dr Ipshita Bansal, Dr Hooda, and Dr Shalini.

Dr Nidhi Yadav proposed the vote of thanks wherein heartfelt gratitude was expressed for Hon'ble Vice Chancellor Sushma Yadav ma'am for her extremely insightful Presidential Address.

On behalf of the entire Faculty of Department of Political Science, Ram Lal Anand College, Dr Nidhi thanked Prof. Ipshita Bansal, DAA and Dean, BPS Mahila Vishwavidhalaya for providing the opportunity for collaborating with such an esteemed institution. She also thanked Dr. Rajesh Hooda and Dr

Shalini for readily agreeing to collaborate for this academic event and also for supporting in every minute detail. The feedback form link was generated towards the end and it can be said with great pleasure that the event was a great success. We witnessed more number of participants, approx. 430 from various states throughout Indi, than who had registered. Each and every concept was explained comprehensively to the satisfaction of all and doubt session was conducted after every lecture. The event was a great success and every one was satisfied towards the end. The e-Certificates were issued to all the participants after the completion of the Workshop.

AN INTRODUCTION

PMMMNMTT AND MHRD

The Ministry of Human Resource Development (MHRD) launched the Pandit Madan Mohan Malviya National Mission on Teachers and Teaching (PMMMNMTT) in 2017. One of the main objectives of this mission is to facilitate teacher training by constituting Teaching Learning Centres in various institutions of higher education in our country. The Teaching Learning Centres (TLCs) are mandated to promote on a continuous basis the learning of new pedagogical practices, methodology of forming discipline-specific curricula and creating new learning materials (including e-content) for use by the teachers in colleges and postgraduate departments. It is envisioned that the TLCs will accelerate the teaching-learning process by encouraging independent critical and creative thinking and facilitating research for subject-specific growth.

The TLCs will assist the faculty in capacity building for curriculum designing, scientific assessment and evaluation and the development of innovative academic programs to strengthen the inclusive nature of higher education. The TLCs are also encouraged to reach out to teachers teaching in regionally disadvantaged locations.

The Pandit Madan Mohan Malviya National Mission emphasizes the need to change the role and workings of a teacher from a mere disseminator of information and knowledge to the one who helps students to develop critical, analytical skills, capabilities to generate information, the ability to reason and to empower themselves through open sources and globally oriented digitalized self-learning processes. The focus is not only on 'what is taught' but also importantly, to 'the way it is taught,' in an effort to develop and enhance individual education, that will eventually go on to define the manner in which the future generations will work and live.

The Teaching Learning Centres offer Faculty Induction Programs (FIPs) for newly recruited faculty and Faculty Development Programs (FDPs) for teachers with experience who wish to update their field of knowledge, expertise and skill with the latest available research, resources and technology. In the FDPs, special emphasis is given to inter and cross-disciplinary methodologies of study. Currently, the teaching fraternity is missing their lively and interactive classrooms due to COVID-19 Pandemic. To address the present situation, the University Grants Commission (UGC) has intensified its efforts to have a strong virtual engagement with the students through email/WhatsApp and hosting lectures using Google Class Room and other video-conferencing platforms.

Keeping in view the immense benefits and reach of online courses in the present academic set-up, Department of Political Science, Ram Lal Anand College in collaboration with the Teaching Learning Centre at Ramanujan College along with its two departments i.e. Centre for Human Rights Studies and Department of Political Science, Ramanujan College, University of Delhi plans to offer a One Week Faculty Development Programme on "Transforming Governance in India: Issues and Concerns" for faculty members and research scholars of higher education in the country from September 21- September 27, 2020.

CONCEPT NOTE

TRANSFORMING GOVERNANCE IN INDIA: ISSUES AND CONCERNS

(September 21-27, 2020)

The word "governance" came from the Latin verb "gubernare," or more originally from the Greek word "kubernaein," which means "to steer." Basing on its etymology, governance refers to the manner of steering or governing, or of directing and controlling, a group of people or a state. Governance is essentially related to politics, in that politics is often defined as the art of governance. Just as politics talks about governments, institutions, power, order, and the ideals of justice, governance also deals with the public sector, power structures, equity, and ideals of public administration. Nevertheless, they are distinct from each other in the sense that politics is broader than governance. Traditionally, the study of politics entails the concept of the "good life" and the "ideal society," which are so broad they include a web of subjects and every possible form of government. The study of governance, on the contrary, is generally attuned to the concept of democracy, and on how the government and the civil society arrive at a decision in meeting their needs. Governance is the complex process whereby some sectors of the society wield power, and enact and promulgate public policies which directly affect human and institutional interactions, and economic and social development. The power exercised by the participating sectors of the society is always for the common good, as it is essential for demanding respect and cooperation from the citizens and the state. As such, a great deal about governance is the proper and effective utilization of resources.

Governance is traditionally associated with government. In literatures, they are often used interchangeably. But in the 1980s, political scientists broadened the meaning of governance as including, not just government actors, but also civil-society actors. Today, governance includes three sectors: the public sector (state actors and institutions), the private sector (households and companies), and the civil society (non-governmental organizations). These three sectors are said to work hand in hand in the process of governance. This new use of the term focuses on the role of "networks" in the achievement of the common good, whether these networks are intergovernmental, transnational, or international. In other words, governance is broader than government in that other sectors are included in it.

Many authors also distinguish the two by associating government with "control and domination," and governance with "decentralization and relational management." On the one hand, government refers to a central institution which wields power over its subjects. It is the instrument patterned after the model of "command and control," the government being in command over the affairs of the people. On the other hand, governance is closely associated with the concept of decentralization of power and the need for inter-sectoral management. Governance is based on the realization that the government cannot do everything for the people, so that in order to survive the state should not only rely on government but also on the other sectors of the society. Thus, under the current trend, there is a need to move from the "traditional hierarchical exercise of power by the government" to the new notion of a "dispersed and relational power in governance" – from government to governance. To govern should now mean to facilitate or regulate, not to dominate or command.

Historical circumstances appeared to have favoured the articulation governance as a mode of public administration. To be precise, governance is conceptualised in a historical context supporting the decline, if not the end, of authority. As an OCED (Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development) publication formulates, four sets of historical developments seen to have influence the profound shifts in governance: first, the impact of struggles for 'greater democracy and cooperative markets'; second, the ways in which 'change in economic productivity and material wealth alter both the aims and method of governance'; third, demands for reforming the well- entrenched and excessively rule bound system of administration; fourth, managerial innovations and their application to transform the institutional design and organizational structure and organizational structure of administrative operations.

The argument in favour of more governance and less government appears to have gained ground in the early 1970s. It was Harlan Cleveland who first drew attention to actual governance which was a casualty due to bureaucratic hegemony. Cleveland's suggestion appears to have been endorsed first by World Bank and later by the other global agencies. The World Bank also defines governance in the following words the manner in which power is exercised in the management of a country's economic and social resources for development. Globally as well as internally, governance assures that corruption is minimised, the views of minorities are taken into account and the voices of the most vulnerable in society are heard in decision making. In other words, governance can also be articulated to meet the goals related to strategic vision society.

The deep-rooted ethos and functional vibrancy of democratic life in India is, arguably, the direct result of the endeavour of the makers of our Constitution. Not only did they envision India as a modern secular and democratic Nation that maintains the primacy of fundamental rights over other state imperatives and is governed by the rule of law; they also ensured comprehensive and precise provisions in the Constitution to facilitate the progress of the nation in that desired direction. The basic point is that, being tuned to the public, public administration is clearly a well-informed response drawn on the dialectical interconnection between the text and the context. And here lies the challenge because both the text and the context, despite being located in analytically separate domains, provide useful and Critical inputs in the shaping and reshaping of public administration as an area of activity. The new debate of governance is focusing towards transforming governance by drawing attention to the economic and political development that needs to be questioned and also need to be accessed in the light of historical evidence, sequence and time.

The proposed Faculty Development Programme for the academicians as well as researchers will focus on the issues related to 'TRANSFORMING GOVERNANCE' and will also try to reach to the possible solutions while addressing the concerns. The COVID-19 situation has also dramatically changed the entire scenario of the governance methods and also introduced the use of strategic techniques in to deliver better results. There is a much need to have experts on a single platform who not only talk of Executing Governance but also tell us how to enjoy our rights, focus on duties and responsibilities in this current situation.

ONE WEEK FACULTY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMME

from

September 21-27, 2020

"TRANSFORMING GOVERNANCE IN INDIA: ISSUES AND CONCERNS"

CONCEPT NOTE

The word "governance" came from the Latin verb "gubernare," or more originally from the Greek word "kubernaein," which means "to steer." Basing on its etymology, governance refers to the manner of steering or governing, or of directing and controlling, a group of people or a State. Governance is essentially related to politics, in that politics is often defined as the art of governance. Just as politics talks about governments, institutions, power, order, and the ideals of justice, governance also deals with the public sector, power structures, equity, and ideals of public administration. Nevertheless, they are distinct from each other in the sense that politics is broader than governance. Traditionally, the study of politics entails the concept of the "good life" and the "ideal society," which are so broad they include a web of subjects and every possible form of government. The study of governance, on the contrary, is generally attuned to the concept of democracy, and on how the government and the civil society arrive at a decision in meeting their needs. Governance is the complex process whereby some sectors of the society wield power, and enact and promulgate public policies which directly affect human and institutional interactions, and economic and social development. The deep-rooted ethos and functional vibrancy of democratic life in India is, arguably, the direct result of the endeavor of the makers of our Constitution. Not only did they envision India as a modern secular and democratic nation that maintains the primacy of fundamental rights over other state imperatives and is governed by the rule of law; they also ensured comprehensive and precise provisions in the Constitution to facilitate the progress of the nation in that desired direction. INAUGURAL SESSION

Professor Sushma Yadav (Vice Chancellor, BPSMV)

Professor Shri Prakash Singh (Department of Political Science, University of Delhi)

Professor S.P. Aggarwal (Principal - Ramanujan College, University of Delhi)

Professor Rakesh Kumar Gupta (Principal - Ram Lal Anand College, University of Delhi)

Since after the primary lockdown, scholastic discourse and dissemination-academic & co-curricular- has shifted to the virtual gear, where meet-classes, video-conferences, zoom-conferences and webinars (seminars that are hosted virtually) comprise the 'new-normal', mostly. TLC, Centre for Human Rights Studies & Department of Political Science from the The Ramanujan College, University of Delhi in collaboration with the Political Science Department-Ram Lal Anand College, University of Delhi orchestrated the "One Week Faculty Development Programme" with the central theme of "Transforming Governance in India: Issues and Concerns", from 21st September to 27th September. The Ministry of Education launched the Pandit Madan Mohan Malviya National Mission on Teachers and Teaching (PMMMNMTT) to facilitate teacher training by constituting Teaching Learning Centres in various institutions of higher education in our country, under whose alias this programme is commissioned.

In these troubling times as well, the ethics of an opening ceremony wasn't forgotten; as was the ritual of numerous pre-pandemic seminars- speakers, coordinator-professors, senior professors and Principals graced the participants with a plethora of additional learnings in their key-notes at the inaugural ceremony. Primarily, both Principals- Prof. Rakesh Kumar Gupta, Ram Lal Anand College, University of Delhi and Prof. S.P. Aggarwal, Ramanujan College, University of Delhi (chief patrons of the FDP) graced the audience with their wisdom and went on to express their gratitude in general to all the participants of the Webinar, and to the speakers and coordinator-professors in particular; they elucidated upon their knowledge of Governance as a different discipline from Political Science, how governance is not only manned by the government, and how there are more parties to it; and most importantly, Prof. Aggarwal stressed the impetus of sound governance in today's time. Next, Dr. Mathur introduced the Presiding Speaker: Honorable Vice Chancellor-BPSMV; Member, University Grants Commission; Member, Press Council of India- Prof. Sushma Yadav who welcomed all the professors in the FDP and expressed her delight on the choice of central theme for the FDP; she went on to illustrate the life of Pt. Madan Mohan Malviya, who was not only a social-reformer and nationalist, but also a great scholar and educationist himself. She went on to elucidate on governance itself saying that governance wasn't synonymous to ruling or authoritarianism, rather it was more like a collective help; she went on to impart wisdom on transitioning governance, and how the world governments are all facing fallacies in governance.

The next keynote speaker was Prof. Shri Prakash Singh, Department of Political Science, University of Delhi. Professor Singh is an enthusiastic speaker who imparted wisdom on governance issues of today's world and how it could be linked to Indian antiquity; thus linking the epics-Mahabharata and Ramayana to today's governance practices. He said how change is the most important factor in any discipline and thus transitioning is necessary. He went on to congratulate the current government for a synergy of good governance and he said and I quote- "that Government is best which rules less". The inaugural ceremony ended with Prof. Jagannath Chaudhary's deliverance of the vote of thanks.

SUMMARY OF THE TECHNICAL SESSIONS

DAY-1, TECHNICAL SESSION I (SEPTEMBER 21, 2020)

PROF. C. SHEELA REDDY

(Chair Professor, Dr. B.R. Ambedkar Chair in Social Justice, Indian Institute of Public Administration, New Delhi)

TOPIC: Good Governance - Changing Dynamics

Day one of the Faculty Development Programme commenced with Maniraj Singh Kohli- a student from the Political Science dept. of the Ram Lal Anand College- welcoming Dr. C. Sheela Reddy, first speaker for the day, to the Webinar. Dr. Reddy is currently the Chair-Professor of Dr. Ambedkar Chair in Social Justice, Indian Institute of Public Administration, and has even trained numerous States, Central & Defense officers in advanced professional programme of Public Administration. In her presentation and lecture on Day-1, she introduced the interdisciplinary faculties from numerous colleges to good governance and it's transitioning dynamics in the national governments today.

She elaborated upon the dichotomy between the traditionalist and modern administration approaches, elucidating how the traditionalist approach was centric, statist, and largely based on organisational efficiency and structure; this system of bureaucracy "rowed", juxtaposed with the modem administration system that believes in "steering". While focusing on Woodrow Wilson who's also known as the Father of Public Administration, Professor Reddy elaborated on the dichotomy between Politics and Public Administration; On the other hand, the speaker also quoted Pt. Jawaharlal who while inaugurating Nehru, at the inaugural address at the Indian Institute of Public Administration conceded that human beings and welfare should be the primary drivers of administration, devoid of narcissism. She explained how the term 'governance' gained prominence through the World Bank report on the Sub-Saharan Africa model of sustainable growth. The World Bank explained governance as the manner in which power is exercised in the management of a country's economic and social resources for development. She also said that governance today is being modified through managerial reforms. She went on to say that transitional administration, emphasizing on the notion that administration shouldn't be rigid and that welfare is its paramount responsibility. To that end, in times of international interdependencies, she went on, public administration is being given a managerial orientation in the sense that governments should be catalytic in nature and serve as a facilitator, as an enabler. These neoliberal administrative theories gained prominence in the early 90s. She talked about notions such as better governance over more governance, linkages of State, Society & Market and stakeholders of governance.

DAY-2, Technical Session II (SEPTEMBER 22, 2020)

and has presented several prestigious papers in India and abroad; she has also served as a consultant for the Ministry of Education formerly the Human Resources Development. Her address circles around challenges to governance in the new age of globalisation.

At the outset of her note, Professor Basu outlined the changing realities in the worldwide pandemic in general and in India, in particular. India stands as the second worst hit nation in the pandemic currently, the healthcare system has emerged as a factor in uplifting the battered economy, and Indian Political life is changing, along with high unemployment rates. India's labour force witnessed the largest migration after the Partition of 1947, and had to go through several hardships- which reflected on the Indian administration. On 25th March, 2020 the Indian Government put the entire nation under a stringent lockdown; this, Professor Basu described, is a testament to the fact that the government can implement policies in an efficient and ruthless manner. She goes on to describe state minimalism and market driven policies as the New Economic Policies, where the private sector is favoured as well; this stands opposed to the older way of a welfare state in the traditional administration. However, in the onset of an emergency the state had to shoulder a lot of responsibilities that a welfare state assumes generally. Majority of the healthcare system, transportation, basic amenities was administered by the state. She described the stringent lockdown, as a shift in gear by the Government from democracy to hard-state, at the onset of a nationwide medical emergency, and elucidated how the government's healthcare system decided the boundaries of the private sector's involvement. After enlightening the attendees on the administration's capabilities, she said that SDGs, which are the bare-minimum requisites for good governance. Next, he went on to illustrate that universities should participate in knowledge-dissemination and knowledge-perpetration in the sense that research and teaching should be its primary functions. Knowledge-perpetration for global-accreditation and not domestic-compilation should be promoted. He mentioned that universities in metropolitan cities attract a more cosmopolitan crowd as compared to other cities, in the sense that allied sectors have developed in a better and more vast manner in the metropolitan cities. He stressed on the importance of quality education over quantity education in the sense that although there are many universities in India, only a few of them can boast of world-class education and research. Professor Ramana points out that many primary learners in state universities (of which, he himself is a product) do not have access to the faculties, facilities and exposure as central universities' students have. - * "The session was very holistic and comprehensive in its approach. It was extremely helpful and engaging. In the changing scenario, especially in this extraordinary era, the explanation about good governance can help one understand the policies undertaken by those in power really well"- Dr. Shefali Manhas

- ❖ "The FDP was well planned, organized and the choice of speakers as per the theme was wonderful. Dr. Nidhi Yadava co-operation and way of handling all the issues is appreciable. She managed all the things very well. All the sessions were good. These kinds of themes are also the need of the hour."—Dr. Reeta
- * "It was a complete learning process altogether. Governance was a whole new area for me. It aided my understanding of Good Governance, E-Governance, Cyber Security Concerns, Qualitative Methods, Academic Governance etc. The presentation of all resource persons helped in explaining the topic of governance and related themes."-Dr. Sucheta Boora
- * "The present Faculty Development Programme on Transforming Governance in India: Issues and Concerns conducted by Ram Lal Anand College, in association with Ramanujan College, University of Delhi is a major success. It was able to touch the various issues, concerns and parameters of governance with vast inputs provided by various experts of the areas."-Dr. Reeta Kumari
- ❖ "It gives us an opportunity to listen and engage with reputed scholars and eminent academicians who are experts in their fields. Further this FDP provided us with an interactive platform for discussion on the different dimensions of the relevant topics with the resource persons who spoke at length regarding Governance and its challenges." Dr. Sangita Dhal
- ❖ "I strongly feel that this kind of session should be made mandatory for all the members of the teaching community. It was not only informative but interesting also. The speakers delivery style was one of the best and he addressed all the issues that we face related to cyber security. Thanks once again."-Dr. Swasti Alpana
- * "FDP was well organised and coordinated meticulously. Both the Technical sessions and Reading materials helped me to grapple with the new area i.e., Transforming Governance in India. Quizzes were interesting. Concerns and queries of the participants were met more than satisfactorily. Assignment given created awareness as how to relate the theme of Transforming Governance to one's own area of specialisation. This FDP gave me an exposure to new emerging areas and a intense learning experience which was joyful."- Dr. Anand Valmiki

In lieu of an overwhelming turn over in the feedback mechanism and engaging quizzes prepared by our organizing team, we can thereby conclude that the Faculty Development Programme was a success on an overall basis which satisfied the participants as well as the organizing crew.

SUMMARY OF THE WEBINAR

"What we are doing to the forests of the world is but a mirror reflection of what we are doing to ourselves and to one another."

-Mahatma Gandhi

Vasudha, the Eco Club, in collaboration with the Department of Political Science and Department of History, Ram Lal Anand College, University of Delhi, organized a webinar on 23rd July, 2021 on 'Gandhi and Environment.' The speaker for the event was Prof. John S Moolakkattu from the Department of International Relations and Politics, Central University of Kerala. He was earlier professor at Mahatma Gandhi University, IIT Madras and held the inaugural Gandhi – Luthuli Professional Chair in Peace Studies, University of KwaZulu – Natal, Durban, South Africa.

The webinar started with the introduction of Prof. Rakesh Kumar Gupta, Principal of Ram Lal Anand College, University of Delhi, followed by the introduction of the keynote speaker, Prof. John S Moolakkattu.

Professor Moolakkattu, as an introduction, first laid out that the implications of Gandhi's political and socio-economic ideas are, perhaps a much more relevant way to understand his connection with the environment, rather than his speeches and writings. Many international scholars would argue that ecological consciousness as a movement only began in the 1980s, and that is perhaps why there is only a fleeting mention of the Mahatma in modern-day publications in that field. Ecology as a study does not focus on the spheres of politics or society or economy, it rather attempts to establish an interconnectedness between all living organisms, taking care to stress on how the relationship between humans and their environment has evolved as a result of culture and traditions, and in some cases even religion and folklore. In the words of Gandhi, "I believe in Advaita (known duality). I believe in the essential unity of man, and for that matter, all that lives."

As the event progressed, Prof. Moolakkattu proceeded to explain that Gandhi cannot be termed as an extreme environmentalist, who would not bother with questions of sustainable living. He was of the opinion that human interests should be tempered with the need to preserve our harmony with nature. Gandhi looked at the human tendency to acquire more and more goods and services as not only wasteful but downright immoral to an extent. A well-known proponent of indigenous medicine, Gandhi is said to have been appealed to many medical practitioners at the time to undertake research on the beneficial value of these indigenous plants. In fact, the charkha or the spinning wheel was a symbol of his artisnal accord with Nature.

According to Professor, Gandhi had also expressed his concern at the patterns of development that were undertaken by various systems across the world, be it the capitalist or the communist path, since both, according to Gandhi, are based on materialistic progress, looking to create a system of mass consumption, with a simple difference in their distributive models.

The event then meandered to an interesting question-answer session, where Prof. Moolakkattu proceeded to entertain questions from the students as well as faculty members of the college. The questions varied, beginning from the conflict between the modern generation's market-based techno-managerial skills and the adoption of Gandhian principles and policies, to the sharing of unequal responsibilities due to varied usages by different countries. Gandhi was critical of the modern railways, and this topic too was discussed in great detail. His relationship with and influence on Nehru, yet their differences of opinion of development models was discussed next.

The purpose of this webinar was to understand Gandhi's views on the environment in a holistic manner. It helped us realize how Gandhi is still an inspiration to modern day environmentalists like Vandana Shiva and Ram Guha, who have discoursed at length his dialytic opinion on various tenets of the environment.

The event was a resounding success, and was concluded upon the Vote of Thanks being presented by Dr. Narendra Pandey, Convenor, Tawaarikh-The society of the Department of History, Ram Lal Anand College, University of Delhi.
